SUGGEST ITALY BE PENALIZED

H.M. STEVENS DELAYS COMMENT

BENNETT AND RECIPROCITY

SCHEME PRACTICABLE—DOUGLAS

OTTAWA—Severance of diplomatic relations, institution of economic sanctions and other penal measures, were suggested by the League of Nations Society in Canada as penalties to be invoked against Italy if she is proven guilty of contempt of the world community and assault of a fellow member, by the League of Nations assembly next month.

OTTAWA—Whether or not Hon. H. Stevens, Reconstruction party leader, and William Aberhart, victorious chief of the Social Credit party in Alberta, will join forces for the federal campaign remains undecided.

On Saturday, Mr. Stevens, while saying he and the Social Credit leader had some "very friendly" talks recently, reserved full comment on the Alberta result pending developments. Monday the Reconstruction party leader was still uncommunicative as he had not heard from Mr. Aberhart. Calgary information said Social Credit would negotiate, with the new party with a view to joining forces.

OTTAWA—Premier R. B. Bennett is making a last attempt to negotiate a reciprocity treaty with the United States, offering substantial concessions on machinery and chemical tariffs for the wider opening of the American market to Canadian products, particularly from Ontario.

Mr. Bennett wants it for his election campaign, and is speeding things up. Hon. William Herried, Canadian Minister to Washington came to Ottawa, all unknown last week, telling the Prime Minister that President Roosevelt is now in a position to negotiate. Herried McKinnon, Canadian Commissioner of Tariffs has gone to Washington and concrete proposals are slow. Mr. Bennett hopes to get the ground work laid during September and have a draft agreement ready by the first of October, to be displayed to the electorate at the culmination of the election campaign preceding polling on October 14.

Instead of negotiation between governments the affair has narrowed down to a Bennett-Roosevelt agreement.

LONDON—The promise of $25 per month to every man for each adult citizen of Alberta is "quite practicable," declared Major C. H. Douglas, noted economist, and Social Credit movement founder, in an interview published in Monday morning in the News Chronicle.

He added his opinion that the scheme projected by William Aberhart and his Social Credit League followers who triumphed in last week's provincial elections, would have to be developed in stages.

Major Douglas was quoted as saying that when he met Aberhart, who in Alberta some months ago at the invitation of the then United Farmers government to study Social Credit possibilities, he was "much impressed with his ability." He had criticized Aberhart's proposals as a paid official of the Alberta government when asked for an opinion but the criticism, he said, was on points of detail.

- (1) Banish poverty from Alberta.
 - (2) Pay a basic dividend—tentatively set at $25 a month—to every citizen.
 - (3) Establish a "just price" for both producer and consumer.
 - (4) No new money would be used.
 - (5) Non-negotiable securities would be used for the purchase of goods and services.
 - (6) The basic dividend would be collected by a levy.

Most of the Social Credit candidates were elected to office in the first count, and while returns are not complete, the latest report shows:

Liberals leading 2

In response to a telegram from Hon. W. L. Walsh, Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta, William Aberhart, leader of the successful Social Credit party, may following a caucus of members of the new party held in Calgary Wednesday, proceed to Vancouver for an interview. Should it be the wish of caucus, Mr. Aberhart may assume the premiership of the province.

Mr. Aberhart also read a telegram from Major C. H. Douglas, founder of the Douglas Social Credit System, congratulating him on the victory for Social Credit in Alberta. "There will be others," the telegram read, "but only one first."

Mr. Aberhart announced he had asked Major Douglas when he could come to Alberta.

"The leader said there was the possibility of his party being swept out of office at the polls on Thursday. Premier R. G. Reid laid plans to lay down the reins of government at the earliest possible moment which probably will be September 13.

The Election Act calls for a period of 10 days to elapse in which returning officers make returns and a further 10 days in which protests may be filed. At the end of this 20-day period the new members of the Legislature, the eighth in the history of the province, will be gazetted and declared elected.

As new members will not be officially elected until that time, Hon. Mr. L. G. Walsh, cannot call upon William Aberhart, leader of the Social Credit party to form a government.

At that time Premier Reid and his colleagues will be ready to hand in their resignations.

REPAIRS BEING MADE TO UNITED CHURCH BUILDING

Will Excavate Basement and Install Furnace

Work commenced on Tuesday morning of this week on alterations to the United Church in Carbon and many changes are being made before the work is completed.

The board of managers has decided to move the building to the center of the lot and have a basement cut into the structure. A furnace will be installed.

The main part of the building will remain as it is, but the basement will be torn down and rebuilt into one large class room for Sunday School purposes.

APPROXIMATELY 140 CANDIDATES LOSE DEPOSITS

It has been said, and returns indicate—that approximately 140 candidates running in the Alberta election will lose their $40 deposits, this giving the new government some $14,000 to help out in their "New Deal" program.

Social Credit candidates in some cases elected by a nine to one majority thus indicating the will of the people.

ALBERTA GAME LAWS

Widespread alterations in provincial game regulations, including reduction of game fees in many instances, have been approved by the government, according to Stanley H. Clark, game commissioner.

One of the most important regulations which permit residents of Manitoba, Saskatchewan or British Columbia, to hunt bird game in Alberta for $2 per season, and hunters are holders of some bird licenses in their own provinces. The previous figure was $10.

Resident out-of-province hunters within forest reserves are reduced from $25 to $25 and resident big game licenses have been reduced from $25 to $25. The resident special all license is cut from $10 to $5 and there is no longer any special license necessary for bear in the forest reserves, this being abolished in the general big game license.

There will be an entire closed season on swans, cranes, geese, plovers, ptarmigan, blue grouse, and Redpolls, and Spruce Partridge.

There will be a 19 day open season for prairie chickens from October 1 to 19 to the territory lying south of the Saskatchewan river and west of the Edmonton-Calgary line and the Calgary-Medicine Hat line of the C.P.R. and west of the line between ranges 25 and 26 to the international border.

Open season for Hungarian partridge south of the main line of the C.P.R. across the province will be from Sept. 16 to November 30 and in the territory north of the C.P.R. main line from Oct. 1 to 30.

The bag limit of mountain goat has been increased from one to two. Prairie and young elk with less than eight points are protected. There is an entire closed season on badger. The use of rifles in killing water fowl is prohibited. The migratory birds convention act carries this prohibition and it is now included in the Alberta Game Act.

For each farm license for fur-producing animals, which are not taxed the fee shall be $1.

LOWER STORAGE RATES

Something new in the history of the grain business in Western Canada developed this week when the Alberta Pool Elevators announced their intention of cutting the storage rates for grain carried in its elevators by approximately one-third effective from August 31, 1932 to August 31, 1933.

Pool elevators will charge 1-5c a bushel a day for grain in store. Instead of a bushel a day—the rate which has prevailed for many years. The new rate will apply for grain raised in its own 45 elevator country as well as in its 4 terminals at the Pacific coast.

Alberta Pool Elevators is a co-operative organization owned and operated by Alberta farmers. In that position it considers it a privilege to be instrumental in reducing costs in some of the most important grain storage a year when crops have suffered severely from drought, heat and frost.

THE FARMER KNEW

A story is told by the Impromptu and Machinery Review (Ottawa) of two village officials who were puzzled by the fact that a local farmer never took a railway ticket when he went to the neighboring market but always handed in the cash to one of them. These men were brothers and were the general foremen of the depot which was of the village, little used kind. But at last they appreciated the farmer's way why he persisted in handing the money to them instead of buying a ticket in the railroad way. The rich said: "Years ago I lost a cow on the railway and never got compensation. I vowed the company would never pay me anything from me and I thought they never shall while you're here."

The Object Of An Election

By the time this article appears in print the very interesting Provincial election campaign which has been in progress in Alberta will be concluded and the electors of that province will have rendered their judgment as between the several parties and their respective policies. This Alberta campaign has been unusually interesting, not only on account of the number and variety of political groups which have placed candidates in the field, but because a plan or system of finance and economics entirely new to Canada, namely Social Credit, has been urged for adoption and a trial. As a result the attention of all Canada, and even in other countries, was focused on Alberta.

By this time, too, Canadians will be in the throes of a Dominion general election which also presents a situation that is new in the political history of Canada. The present contest will not be confined to the two traditional parties, Liberal and Conservative, but will include the election of five years ago another two political parties have come into being and are contending for the favor of the voters in support of policies and programmes which they believe are necessary to solve the problems which have arisen in this rapidly changing world.

So, in scores of constituencies, instead of making a clear-cut decision as between two aspiring candidates for Parliamentary honors, and between two distinct lines of policy as represented by Conservatism and Liberalism, the voters will have to make up their minds as between three, four, and possibly even a larger number of candidates presenting differing programmes.

The situation is one that undoubtedly throws a greater responsibility upon the individual voter for at least one reason, if not for others. The object of Parliamentary elections under the British system of democratic responsible government is two-fold, and it is vitally important that both be kept in mind, and that the voter exercise discretion given to them by the act as he or she proceeds to mark a ballot.

In the first place, the voter is making choice of a personal representative in the House of Commons, the person whom he or she considers best qualified to present his or her views, best qualified to represent that particular constituency, best qualified to represent the views and interests of the Province of which such constituency forms a part, and best qualified to deal with those larger issues of national and world policy in the international handling of which the welfare of all Provinces, constituencies and individuals is involved.

But the selection of such individual representative is not all that is decided by a voter when marking a ballot. There is another, possibly an even greater issue at stake. The basic object of an election is to set up a governing body of the nation; in other words, to create a Government to the executive members of which is entrusted the responsibility of formulating policies and administering the laws and the national business of the Dominion. It is not merely a debating or consulting body that is being chosen, but the Government of the country.

The biggest business enterprise in Canada is Canada itself. If that business is mismanaged, if it is conducted along wrong lines of policy, then each and every other business in Canada, and every individual in Canada, stands to suffer loss. Stated another way, individual voters are the shareholders in the largest and most important of all business enterprises—Canada itself. In a general election they are meeting as shareholders to choose a board of directors, a board of management, from the 345 members then chosen, an executive or board of management is selected, namely, the cabinet of ministers chosen by the president of the whole corporation, the Prime Minister, and responsible to him and to the House of Commons.

If in the exercise of their individual rights the voters choose various groups of members having opposing views as to how the business of the country should be conducted, and the nature of the policies that should be followed, and as a result no one group commands a majority over all other groups, and consequently no group is in a position to undertake the responsibility of attempting to govern the country, then government becomes practically impossible, a deadlock exists, the business of the country is neglected or belittled because no definite course of action can be decided upon and a straight course steered. The proper conduct of government and national business is impossible and the whole country and every interest suffers.

Consequently, it is necessary for the individual voter in exercising the best judgment possible in making selection of a personal representative in the House of Commons to give consideration to the question of the selection of such possible representative, but also to the personnel, leadership and policies of the group to which he belongs and supports. He must decide, too, whether such group has within itself the necessary numbers, power and ability to establish a strong Government and give to Canada that sound and efficient administration which the welfare of all citizens demands shall be given.

Admittedly, Canada is a hard country to govern. With a comparatively small population, scattered thinly across half a continent, confronted by people of many racial origins, different languages, and various beliefs, several Provinces mainly rural in occupation, but the two central and by far the most populous Provinces highly industrialized, the problem of popular democratic government is no easy one to solve. Yet it must be solved if all are not to suffer.

Such is the situation and some of the more vital considerations which the voters of Canada must seriously weigh during the next few weeks, and finally must register their judgment upon at the ballot boxes.

A Fast Growing Business

Shark Catching Is Money Maker According To Captain

Up from the Philippines to New York came Capt. Jean M. Ellierich with a message for housewives in search of a new table delicacy and for ambitious young men seeking a job with a future.

"Shark meat," said the captain, "is a dish from heaven." The "shark catching business," he added, "is a fast growing enterprise and one young man might well consider for their life work."

The captain, who has sharked all around the globe, apparently never heard of steaks from Texas rattlesnakes, but he would have you understand shark meat has become a very popular dish. Why they're serving file de sole from sharks to the most discriminating diners, although sometimes under another name.

By virtue of the increasing popularity, the business itself has grown by leaps and bounds, he said, and even during the depression it held its own along with the red-meat manufacturers and the pea was put on the market. Like troubles, there apparently is no end to the sharks. Although a million are taken every year, there are just as many to-day; in fact 200 varieties.

Capt. Ellierich is here to learn the difference between varieties from aquarium officials and survey market possibilities.

In the Philippines he first learned how thoughtful were the natives in throwing away all of the shark, except the fins, which they used for soup.

To-day the skins are used for leather, while the meat in addition to being a palatable food for human consumption, may be used for stock feed and fertilizer.

Several additional products are obtained from the glands, and in distant parts of the world the teeth are used for money. In the far interior of Asia, said Capt. Ellierich, a well polished shark tooth will win a bride, where $10,000 would fail.

Smallest Adult In World

Girl Nineteen Is Only Twenty-One Inches Tall

Margaret Ann Robinson gave a birthday party the other day. At which she stands only twenty-one inches, or one foot, nine, in her slippers, and weighs only eighteen pounds. At the office of George Hamid Enterprises, 1560 Broadway, New York, where pictures were taken, it was declared that she was the smallest adult in the world.

Her mother makes her clothes. She quit growing when five months old, and she never has weighed more than twenty-two pounds.

She was born in Denver, has had baby parts in movies, plays acrobats, has been in the show business two years, plays a violin eleven and one-half inches over all, likes to keep house, dances, and walked a mile yesterday. She likes almost all food except milk and eggs, and recently signed a contract for exhibition at Shrine circuses.

Her father boasted that she is nine and one-half inches shorter than the renowned Tom Thumb, whose smallness helped to make Barnum bigger as a circus magnate, and that to step into the carriage which Queen Victoria gave Tom Thumb would be to climb on a ten-inch box. This carriage is now a museum piece at the University of New Hampshire.

Must Learn Over Again

Operation On Throat Forces Famous Singer To Become Student

Amelia Galli-Curci, internationally famous prima donna, must learn to sing all over again.

For 15 years—through the zenith of her brilliant opera career—the diva gave the world sweet music through a throat that was as supple as a circus magnate, and that to step into the carriage which Queen Victoria gave Tom Thumb would be to climb on a ten-inch box. This carriage is now a museum piece at the University of New Hampshire.

Now, the tumor, "potato," she called it—is gone. Her throat has been cleared of its old problem, and she must learn over again.

The successful operation that removed the 6½ ounce obstruction doubled the amount of air her trachea can hold. She must now accustom herself to control the increased volume so she can produce the same tones.

The "re-learning" lessons begin in Heronville hospital, where the singer was resting comfortably.

Single notes and simple scales will aid the disturbed throat muscles before more difficult exercises begin. That will be after all danger of lesions has been passed.

To-day one cannot tell, driving along London's streets, whether the grocer's truck, loading along in front is really a grocery truck. It looks like a grocery truck and even has lettering on its side to prove it, but it is the driver's isn't one of Scotland Yard's finest, out enjoying the summer weather and enforcing London's new 20-miles per hour speed limit.

The "gongsters" as they are called because they pound a gong when they're tired an unwary motorist) may be found in almost any guinea from a 1918 model truck to the latest thing in sports models. They're disguised, too, with dusts over their uniforms. Considering such tactics as an affront to Britain's sense of fair play, motorists are at each other's throats on the back of their cars reading, "This is not a police car."

Canada Will Be Represented

No organization of a similar nature has been formed in any other country to the World's Poultry Science Association does at the World Poultry Congress which is the triennial meetings of the association. Canada takes an important part in the spreading of scientific and practical poultry knowledge and will be represented at the next congress which will be held in Berlin, Germany, in 1928.

Free Thinking

Dr. Inge, late Dean of St. Paul's, did well to remind his hearers in his university sermon at St. Mary's Oxford, that originally means thinking for oneself and not just thinking differently from other people. Free thinking is fine so long as there is sufficient emphasis on the latter word and not too much on the former.

Not Operating Railroad

No Train Running On Line Into Vatican City

Pope Pius now has a railroad, a station, a tunnel, a bridge, a siding, switches, signals and a dispatcher's room, but it is not yet open. Since then the 2,615-foot road has remained idle.

Built at a total cost of $2,585,000 and paid for by the Italian Government under the provisions of the Lateran treaty of 1929, the railroad was completed a year ago.

There is a gorgeous station that would do honor to a modern city of 50,000 souls, but it is empty. There are tracks that have not felt the hum of wheels since a locomotive made a trial trip into Vatican city last year. The tunnel, dug into Vatican hill and built to facilitate switching without taking up too much valuable space, has its gaping mouth wide open, but never swallows any thing.

The railroad, in proportion to its length, is the most costly in the world. Including the station, tunnel and bridge, the cost was $915 a foot. A railroad linking New York to San Francisco at the same price would run to about $16,000,000, not including the rolling stock.

Yet the Pope is not giving any indication of using the line. He has not yet placed the order for the construction of the papal train. Many plans and designs for such a train, including a special chapel coach, have been drawn, but nothing has been done toward putting them into execution.

The Italian Government naturally would be glad to lend the Pope a train for special trips if he wished. The King undoubtedly would offer the royal train.

Has Unusual Powers

Doors Open For Girl Of Her Own Accord

"I'll open the door for you, Marie," said the mistress of a villa at Nauls, Prague, to her servant, who was carrying a heavily laden tray.

But just as the servant went to the door it opened of its own accord.

The girl's employer thought she must be dreaming. Other members of the family, however, noticed that doors always opened for Marie when she approached them.

The count confessed that she always sent Marie into the cellar for potatoes, because they rolled toward her of their own accord.

The girl herself has no feeling of any unusual powers. A physical research society is now investigating the phenomenon.

CARE NEEDED IN THE HANDLING OF MALTING BARLEY

Take care of your malting barley. It is the timely advice of the National Barley Committee. Much barley that would grade No. 3 Extra or higher is spoiled in the handling. The Committee suggests:

1. That your grain is thoroughly dry before cutting.
2. Stalk carefully to allow the sheaves to dry and wet protect them from the sun. Cap the stacks if necessary.
3. Thresh barley as soon as dry and if possible before it is rained upon.
4. Observe the following precautions in threshing:

- (a) Adjust valve to ensure least possible rotation to the cylinder.
- (b) Have no end play in the cylinder.
- (c) Have proper clearance in all gears.
- (d) Set concaves down at least halfway.
- (e) Use only one or at the most two rows of teeth.
- (f) Thresh in the early morning,
not when dry and hot.
- (g) Slow down the speed as low as possible, 100 r.p.m. below normal.
- (h) Feed sheaves 'butt-end first'.
- (i) When much barley is being threshed, change the cylinder pulley to slow down the speed of the cylinder only.

For further information see the poster on threshing Maltng Barley, in your local elevator and ask the elevator operator for the circular on Harvesting and Grading Barley, prepared by the Plant Breeding and Production Committee, under the direction of L.
H. Newman of the Dominion Experimental Farms.

How to tell if a sinner is Scotch:
See if she holds on to the last note.

Bill—What is the hardest thing you ever did?

Will—Make ten easy payments.

Little Willie—Mamma, is papa going to heaven when he dies?

Mother—Why, son, who put such an absurd idea into your head?

Willie—You think so much of your soul you don't even remember when we were married.

Willie—You let I do. It was the day after I sank that thirty-four putt.

Here lies a memory expert
His theories all exploded;
He monkeyed with a shotgun,
But forgot that it was loaded.

Conductor—This train goes to Buf-
alo and points east.

Old Lady—Well, I want a train that gets to Syracuse and I don't care which way it points.

"Hello, Willie," exclaimed the kind old travelling man. "How is your dear old mamma standing the heat?"
"Ain't heard yet," said Willie. "She's only been dead a week."

A cowboy being examined for life insurance:

"Ever had any accidents?"
"No."

"Think back did you ever have an accident?"

"No. A rattler bit me once though."
"Don't you call that an accident?"
"Now, he-bit me on purpose."

What's become of the old time mother that used to say: "Well I remember it's about time we puttin' long dresses on Emmy?"

"The lecturer warned in his talk.
"The consequences of drunkenness are terrible. If I had my way I would throw every cask of beer, every bottle of wine, every keg of brandy into the middle of the sea."

Voice from the audience—Bravo—
bravo.

Lecturer (very pleased)—You are also a confirmed teetotaler, my friend.
Voice from the audience—No, I'm a deep sea diver.
